A Blessing For My Future

Most fourth graders do not organize their work and lack proper planning skills. I am not like those fourth graders. Why? Because my school teaches these skills, I am an independent learner. Unlike other schools, my school has hard-working teachers that do their best to inspire us and guide me to be a close follower of God. I have attended Prince of Peace Catholic School for 6 years. Within these 6 years, I have made extraordinary memories that I will cherish in my lifetime. Because of all the life skills this school has taught me, I am sure that my school will play an important role in my future. Prince of Peace Catholic School has taught me to always respect others, how I can challenge to do better on my schoolwork, and to become a close follower of Christ.

Respect is a life skill that is imperative for healthy relationships. At school, students usually spread horrible rumors about each other, or may use aggression when they are angry. Luckily, my school teaches the students the importance of respect, so now we do not have bullying issues. All my previous teachers taught me to not be rude to others. I listened to them because I trusted them and because they are an adult, of course. I will be eternally grateful to all my teachers that taught me to be kind and respectful to both peers and authority figures alike.

Not every student wants to put their best effort in their work, challenge themselves, and are usually lazy. Thankfully, I have a magnificent teacher who tells me to above and beyond in my work. Mrs. Winebarger, who is my favorite teacher, helped me improve my writing and my public speaking skills. Mrs. Winebarger challenges us to use many dress-ups, quality adjectives, and strong verbs in our papers. It is difficult, but I know it will help me in middle school, high school, and college. I am beyond grateful to Mrs. Winebarger for teaching me how to engage in my school lessons, have perseverance when I am challenged, and apply life skills to my future.

Several people in our world today don't believe in God, or they worship other material things. They still do not believe in him even after all his miracles. Luckily, I was blessed with a prestigious school that cares about my faith in God. Having an already strong relationship with God, Mrs. Winebarger helped my relationship with God become stronger by making me recite Bible verses almost every week, recite prayers I mostly never knew about, and learning more about God in Spirit of Truth religion book series. I also attend Mass every Wednesday and we sometimes go to Confession as a class. Prince of Peace is also the place where I received First Holy Communion. I will also always be grateful to Mrs. Winebarger for teaching many spiritual things to me through our religion curriculum.

Kindness, spirituality, and academic rigor are some of the things Prince of Peace instructed me to do. When I grow older, these life skills will help me tremendously. It is a blessing to attend Prince of Peace Catholic School, a blessing that I know will pay off.
